THOMAS A. BOYLE, 77, TAKEN EARLY FRIDAY

Heart Disease Fatal to Prominent Retired Insurance Man

FUNERAL IS MONDAY

Came Here 40 Years Ago From Columbus

Thomas A. Boyle, aged 77, engaged in the insurance business here for 40 years until he retired March 1, died at his home 125 Folsom-ave, at 12:55 a. m. Friday after a lingering illness. Organic heart disease was the cause of death.

Mr. Boyle was the last of a family of nine children.

He came to this city from Columbus in 1893 and immediately entered the insurance business when he purchased the business of N. T. Julian. He then became a partner of Samuel Ward. After Mr. Ward's death Mr. Boyle formed a partnership with Lawrence J. Johnson which prevailed for 11 years until Mr. Boyle retired. Mr. Johnson now continues the business under his own name.

IN SAME LOCATION

In all 40 years of his activity in the insurance field where he gained a wide reputation for his fairness and honesty in dealing with the public, Mr. Boyle was located in rooms over the George F. Grand-Girard drug store.

Thomas Arnold Boyle was born Oct. 15, 1855, in Columbus, a son of Dr. Charles E. Boyle and Catherine Diffenderfer. He was married in this city to Miss Nellie Ward, daughter of Samuel Ward, his business partner.

Mrs. Boyle survives with one daughter, Mrs. Ada E. Webster, and two grandchildren, Margaret Nell and Dorothy L. Webster, all of Columbus. A son, Ward Boyle, succumbed in 1915.

The deceased was a member of the First Presbyterian church.

FUNERAL MONDAY

Funeral services will be Monday at 3 p. m. at the home with Rev. E. S. Toensmeier of the Presbyterian church and Rev. L. C. Sherburne of St. Phillip's Episcopal church officiating. Burial will be in the family lot in Forest cemetery under the supervision of the Albaugh Co.

Hollywood Ired By Culbertson; Replies Listed

Various Members of Colony Scoff at Ely's Opinion of Film Colony

HOLLYWOOD, March 17.—Hollywood simply refuses to take seriously Ely Culbertson's opinion of its bridge ability.

What with the recent bank holidays and earthquake shocks, and the present "salary holiday" in effect, bridge has more or less slipped into the limbo of forgotten things.

Apprised today of the edict in Chicago of the famous expert that in no city of the world are there so many bad bridge players as Hollywood, the cinema capital recalls with a grin that Culbertson while in Hollywood failed to accept a challenge of the Mark brothers they offered to uphold the film capital's honor at a bridge table with Mr. and Mrs. Culbertson.

WHAT STARS SAY

Here's what some of the stars had to say:

Jack Oakie—"I've got a bridge in my mouth but I wouldn't risk it against Ely Culbertson.

Charles Ruggles—"If Culbertson plays according to Hoyle its 'Hoyle-right" by me. He may beat me in bridge, but I'd like to stake a poker duet with him on that song: 'Chips That Pass in the night."

Stuart Erwin—"How can Culbertson say that when Hollywood has all the card suit? For diamonds, there's Diamond Lil Mae West; Peggy Hopkins Joyce has all the hearts; there's plenty of spades at work burying all the characters killed in these mystery stories and Hollywood has more clubs than any city of its size in the world."

Harpo Marx—"I've known all about bridges for years, ever since my Poppa's bridges were cut down for me to wear."

Janet Gaynor: "If Mr. Culbert-

RIVER FLOODS 2 OHIO CITIES

Pomeroy and Marietta Stores Forced to Close; Scioto River Falling

Fear of the Scioto river crossing the Williamsport-pk had been alleviated here today when Dr. H. R. Clarke, weatherman, reported the stream fell two feet eight inches during the night and is now at the 10-foot stage. The highway is inundated when the river is at the 13-foot stage.

Barring heavy rainfall north of Pickaway-co within the next day there is no chance for the river to cross the road.

Such is not the case in southern Ohio, however, where Pomeroy and Marietta are facing serious flood conditions.

ABANDON STORES

Water from the Ohio river was surging over two-thirds of Pomeroy's business district today with the river expected to reach its crest this afternoon. It is now at the 52 foot stage. Serious damage is threatened.

Several business establishments of the city have been evacuated. Among them is the telegraph office which was forced to move to higher ground where a temporary station was set up.

The entire business district of Marietta was inundated today with the river at the 41-foot stage at 9 a. m. Approximately one-fourth of the residential district is flooded. Flood refugees are being cared for in factory buildings. Only one paved highway, U. S. route 21 to Cambridge, remained open to traffic.

MOTHER SUCCUMBS

A. R. Hernley and children, N. Court-st, have been called to Pennsylvania by the death of Mrs. Hernley's mother, Mrs. Bender, which occurred Wednesday. Mrs. Hernley has been with her mother for the past several weeks.

Mrs. Bender lived in a suburb of Lancaster, Pa.

BEER INDUSTRY LISTS BENEFITS

Estimated Output of Money Made by Secretary of Group; "for Year's Time"

CLEVELAND, March 17.— C. D. Williams, secretary of the United States Brewers' Association, today answered the question: "How will beer aid industry and the farmers."

According to his predictions, if beer is legalized in the United States, the following sums will be expended:

$75,000,000 for brewing equipment.

$50,000,000 for electrical equipment, apparatus and supplies.

$50,000,000 for cooperage.

$20,000,000 for advertising.

$15,000,000 for bottles.

$15,000,000 for trucks and automobiles.

$12,000,000 for cases.

Williams' figures are for the 12-month period beginning with modification of the 18th amendment to allow "good beer." For the farmer, he has good news also. Brewers, he said, will need 45,000,000 pounds of rice, corn and sugar and 30,000,000 pounds of hops.

MRS. JOY DIES

Mrs. Jane Joy, aged 78, died early Friday at her home in Monroe-twp three miles north of Williamsport.

She is survived by three daughters. A grandson, Robert Joy, resided with her. Mrs. Joy had been in poor health since Thanksgiving.

Funeral arrangements, in charge of C. E. Hill, have not been completed.

PHYSICIANS HEAR SKIN SPECIALIST

Four Circleville physicians were among 36 who attended a meeting of the Fairfield-co Medical society at the Boys' Industrial school at Lancaster Thursday afternoon. A techincal address was made by Dr. Sheppard, skin specialists, of Columbus.

Drs. E. S. Shane, T. D. Jackson, C. G. Stewart and C. C. Beale attended from here. Dr. Addison Kefauver of Stoutsville was also present.

3 Students Win Degree From O.S.U.

Alice Ada May, James Allen Eagleson, Walter Dunlap Graduate Saturday

Three Pickaway-co students at Ohio State University will be graduated at the winter convocation exercises held Saturday at the university. Nearly 200 students will receive degrees.

Included in the list are:

Alice Ada May, N. Scioto-st, will receive the Master of Arts degree. Her field of specialization is history. She received her bachelor's degree from Ohio State in 1931. Miss May is a member of Sigma Kappa sorority.

James Allen "Budd" Eagleson, son of Prof. and Mrs. J. O. Eagleson, S. Pickaway-st, will be awarded the degree of Bachelor of Ceramic Engineering. Eagleson attended Muskingum college before entering Ohio State. He has been active in the Ohio State branch of the American Ceramic society.

Walter L. Dunlap, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dunlap, Wayne-twp, will be granted the degree of Doctor of Veterinary Medicine. He is the only student to receive that degree this quarter.

Prof. George M. Bolling, of the department of classical languages, will give the convocation address. The exercises may be the last quarterly convocation in some time as the faculty commencement committee has recommended the abandonment of all but the June commencement as a measure of economy.

OHIO TO ELECT 52 DELEGATES

Convention to Vote Proposed Repeal Assured as Mosier Bill Passes

COLUMBUS, March 17.—A constitutional convention of 52 delegates, elected from the state at-large, to ratify or reject the proposal of the 18th amendment was virtually assured Ohio today following the passage by the state house of representatives yesterday of the Mosier-Lawrence bill.

The vote on the measure, which has already passed the state senate but which will have to be returned there for concurrence in some minor amendments, was 72 to 50. Governor George White has indicated that he will sign the measure when it reaches him.

Under the terms of the bill, the 52 delegates who will pass upon the 18th amendment, will be elected probably next November 7. The convention of the delegates will be held early in December.

Passage of the Mosier-Lawrence measure was the second anti-prohibition victory won by legislative wet leaders yesterday. The first came when the senate passed the Addison bill, guaranteeing jury trials of all cases of violations of state statutes and city ordinances, including liquor law violations.

The big bill of the state anti-prohibitionist program is expected to come up for action in the legislature early next week. It is the Ackerman bill to legalize 3.2 per cent beer.

MAYOR DISRUPTS PLAN FOR ADDRESS

Fearful that his address might do more harm than good especially at this time, Mayor B. T. Hedges, late Thursday, refused E. C. House permission to speak to the public at Memorial Hall.

House who chose as his subject "Where Do We Go From Here?" is a member and is working for the American Citizenship Foundation.

After reading circulars sent throughout the city and the county by Mr. House the Mayor decided several subjects mentioned for discussion might work adversely in consideration of the times.

House, hovever, spoke in the various city schools Thursday afternoon.

SENATE ASSURES LEGALITY OF BEER, LIGHT WINE; SALE TO MINORS BARRED

Percentage of Alcoholic Content Reduced From 3.2 to 3.05

AMENDMENTS MADE

Roosevelt is Expected to Sign Bill Monday

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Legalization of beer and light wines by the first week of April became a certainty today as the Senate returned the bill, modifying the Volstead act, to the House for approval of its amendments. The upper house voted the bill, 43-30.

The Senate legalized 3.05 per cent beer and wine, whereas the House authorized the manufacture and sale of 3.2 beer only. The Senate also prohibited the sale of the beverages to minors under sixteen. There were indications the House would accept the amendments.

The Senate recessed until Monday, so the bill cannot be sent to President Roosevelt for his signature until that day. It would take effect fifteen days later. Administration leaders expected the legalization to bring $125,000,000 annually in federal taxes.

TWO MAJOR CHANGES

The dry and moists of the Senate united to force two major changes in the bill brought forth by Democratic leaders. First, they forced administration leaders to accept the reduction of the legalized alcholic limit from 3.2 to 3.05 per cent. Then they voted the ban on sales to minors, by 50 to 23, at the instance of Senator Borah (R) of Idaho.

House leaders were expected to accept these changes. Rep. Cullen (D) of New York, father of the bill in the house, announced he would have to "talk it over with leaders" but indicated a willingness to accept the Senate amendments. So did Rep. Doughton (D) of North Carolina, chairman of the House ways and means committee, which drafted the bill.

The bill as it passed the Senate, would legalize beer, ale, porter, wine, similar fermented malt or vinous liquor or fruit juices, containing not more than 3.05 percent of alcohol by weight. This percentage would equal 3.8 by volume.

$5 PER BARREL

A federal sales tax of $5 per barrel of 31 gallons would bring in the federal revenue, along with a $1,000 federal tax on each brewery producing fermented beverages. No licenses would be issued in dry states.

The bill would allow the manufacture of malt beverages in excess of 3.05 perecnt but only if the alcoholic content were reduced to the legalized limit prior to sale. The same permission would be given producers of wine or fruit juices.

Dry states would be protected by a special provision, prohibiting transportation of the legalized beverages into their territory. A special section would impose a fine of $1,000 or six months imprisonment on violators of the dry state protective clause.

The bill would permit newspaper advertising of the legalized beverages, regardless of state laws, so far as the U. S. mails are concerned.

The modification of the Volstead act was extended specifically to Hawaii, Porto Rico and Alaska.

ADJUDGED INSANE

Mrs. Nora Cochran, 58, of New Holland, was taken to the Athens State hospital Thursday afternoon by Sheriff and Mrs. Radcliff accompanied by Charles Cochran.

Examining physicians, Dr. A. F. Kahler and Dr. J. B. May, both of New Holland, pronounced the woman as suffering from extreme hallucinations, and as mentally incompetent.

SMITH RELEASED, NO CHARGE FILED

Orval Smith, arrested Tuesday night here after a fracas on W. Main-st, was freed from $10 bond Thursday night by Mayor B. T. Hedges when no charges were brought against him. Ten dollars, posted as bond, was returned to Smith's bondsman.

Hearing the intoxication charge against R. Palm was postponed by the Mayor. Several others are to be hailed before the court the Mayor announced Friday.

Actor Declares He is Victim of Extortion Plot

Douglas Fairbanks Jr. Sued for $70,000 by Chemical Engineer

HOLLYWOOD, March 17. — Douglas Fairbanks Jr., young motion picture actor, today struck back at charges that he had stolen the love of another man's wife.

"Extortion plot," was his characterization of two suits filed against him yesterday in Los Angeles by Jorden Dietz, chemical engineer.

Dietz in one suit for $50,000 charged young Fairbanks with "wilfully, wickedly and maliciously," depriving the plaintiff of the affections of his wife, Mrs. Solveig Dietz, said to be a scenario writer.

Dietz's second suit asked $20,000 damages for asserted false imprisonment.

The alleged relationship between Fairbanks and Mrs. Dietz started in February 1931, and resulted in the separation of Mr. and Mrs. Dietz April 15, 1932, Dietz recited.

NAME VINCENT ROSS SHERIFF

Democratic Committee Recommends Appointment to Fill Vacancy

Joe Vincent of Liberty-twp, Ross-co, was named sheriff of that county to complete the unexpired term of Sheriff T. Ewing Arganbright who died last Sunday after an extended illness.

Vincent was named late Thursday according to information received here after a recommendation had been made by the Ross-co Democratic executive committee that he be appointed by the county commissioners.

Vincent's name was the only one submitted to the committee as a candidate and unanimous recommendation was made.

The resolution was signed by Garrett Claypool, chairman of the committee.

Vincent will serve out the term of two years which began January 1. Ben Rout, Don Lowery and Nell Walker are his deputies.

HUGH MONTGOMERY DIES FRIDAY NOON

Funeral arrangements and further details will be announced Saturday by the Albaugh Co. in charge.

ENTER WORKHOUSE

Milton Stooky and Clarence Baker, of New Holland and Jackson-twp respectively, were taken to the Cincinnati workhouse Friday by Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Constable Oscar Woeber.

Each of the men was fined $100 and costs by Mayor B. T. Hedges. Stookey being arrested for intoxication and Baker for driving intoxicated.

They are the first men taken to the Cincinnati institution after an agreement between the county commissioners and the workhouse had been made.

FILE CLAIMS

Ten claims were filed with the Industrial Commission of Ohio during February by Pickaway-co residents. None of the claims were fatal but two caused permanent partial disability. Three caused over seven days lost time and one seven days or less. Four were medical cases and required no loss of time.

SPEEDY ACTION ON FARM PLAN SEEN IN HOUSE

Secretary of Agriculture Answers Questions In Hearing Today.

NAMED EXPERIMENT

Bill Designed to Boost Price on Crops.

WASHINGTON March 17.—The administration's farm relief bill, designed to boost prices on basic agricultural commodities produced this year, was before Congress today with Democratic leaders promising speedy enactment.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, appearing before the Senate agricultural committee, explained in detail the bill's provisions and answered a volley of questions from committee members.

Senator Smith (D) of South Carolina, committee chairman, expressed hope that the bill would be reported to the Senate early next week. A number of Senators, however, have requested that open hearings be held.

HOUSE ACTS EARLY

In the House, Rep. Jones (D) of Texas, chairman of the agriculture committee planned to bring the bill up for passage tomorrow.

The bill is declared by farm experts in Congress to embrace one of the most sweeping emergency farm relief plans ever proposed. It was recommended by President Roosevelt with the frank statement that it is an experiment.

The basic plan of the bill is to remove the agricultural surplus, which depresses prices, by limiting production during the 1933 crop year. Because the planting season is about to begin, extraordinary speed in passage was planned.

The basic agricultural commodities embraced in the bill are wheat, cotton, corn, hogs, [illegible] sheep, rice, tobacco, milk and milk products. The secretary of agriculture can drop any product from operation of the bill.

A processing tax would be levied upon all the products, similar to the billion dollar tax proposed in the domestic allotment bill, to meet the cost of operation.

WITHDRAW LAND

The money would be used primarily to withdraw land from production during the current year by renting land and allowing it to lie idle or diverting it into other production.

Extraordinary powers are given the secretary of agriculture to administer the act and to fix the tax which shall be collected.

The bill is intended to raise the price of agricultural commodities to a point where a bushel of wheat will buy as much now as it did during the years 1909 to 1914.

The Smith cotton bill, which was "pocket vetoed" by President Hoover, is included. Under the bill, the cotton now owned by the government and cooperatives would be pooled. A farmer would be given option to buy a portion of the cotton if he agreed to cut his own production 30 per cent. He could sell the cotton later at a profit if, as is expected, the deduction would boost the price.

C. L. VAN METER DIES IN PADUCAH

Charles L. VanMeter, a former resident of this city, died at his home in Paducah, Ky., Friday at 4 a. m. Mr. VanMeter has been ill for nine years with paralysis.

Mrs. Arthur Weigand, Watt-st, is a sister-in-law.

PLAN TO EQUALIZE STATE & NATIONAL BANKS GAINS FAVOR

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Congressional action to place state banks on a par with national banks in the issuance of emergency currency appeared assured today.

Declaring that President Roosevelt has approved a bill making this provision, Rep. Henry B. Steagall (D) of Alabama, chairman of the House banking committee, planned to call the measure up for passage during the day.

BOB WHITE SAVED!

COLUMBUS, March 17.—Bob White is saved from hunters' guns for two years more. A bill to take the quail from the song-bird list and make it legitimate game was killed in the house of representatives yesterday by the conservation committee.

What Have You To Trade? Baby Buggy, Shoes, Auto? What? Herald "Swap" Week Will Do It

"SWAP!"

That will be "the" word next week with readers of The Herald for "Swap Week" will be in progress, offering opportunities galore for you to dispose of valuable odds and ends about the house, at the same time receiving something you need.

Somewhere back in the line of all our ancestors a lot of swapping was done. Years ago barter was the only means of procuring the necessities of life. It was swap, or trade, no matter what you term it.

If you have moved to a home where there is no sun porch and you have an attic full of porch furniture and you may be able next week to make a good trade with someone for a radio, electric washing machine, a flivver or any one of several countless articles.

It may be you have a lot in some real estate development that you realize now you'll never need. Maybe you can swap it to someone who can use it for a house somewhere else or maybe for a motor boat, or a grand piano.

Those are just samples. The possibilities of swap are innumerable. And it won't cost you a cent. The Herald will advertise your swaps free of charge and you may advertise as many articles as you wish, with no limit being placed on the space used for descriptions etc.—within reason of course.

There's only one restriction. No articles may be advertised for sale or for trade in which a cash consideration enters. Everything must be offered for swap. You get what you want and the other fellow gets what he wants.

The Herald desires as many swap ads this week as possible in order to be able to start off the week Monday March 20, with a long list. A special section of the paper has been reserved for publication of the notices, so make out your list and write your ads at once. Mail or bring them to the "Swap Editor" of The Herald. Do not phone.

With your ads give your name and address and telephone number, if you have a telephone.

Remember, the fun lasts the entire week, March 20-25, beginning next Monday. Get your swap ads in at the start. There is no charge whatsoever connected with them.

STATE CAGE TEAMS IN TITLE CONTEST

Springfield and Lancaster St. Mary's Expected to Cop Honors

COLUMBUS, March 17—Sixteen of the state's best high school basketball teams, battle-scarred from previous preliminary tournaments, swept into Columbus today to battle for the state championship in the biggest classic of the year—the state finals.

The gun that sends them on their way at the Ohio State University gymnasium was to crack at 1 p. m., signalling the beginning of a class B game between Coventry and Henrietta.

Two hours later the class A competition was to start with a game between two dark horses—Bellevue and Marietta.

With a fast, sizzling brand of basketball expected to be showed in every game, there has been a quickening of interest in the tournament in the last few days and a capacity crowd of 4,000 was expected to be in the stands for nearly every attraction.

FINALS SATURDAY

The tournament will continue tonight and tomorrow with the big wind-up coming tomorrow night at 8 o'clock when two class A teams and two class B teams will step on the floor to battle for the titles in their respective classes.

Springfield, due to its record of 26 victories and one defeat, continued the favorite in the dope in class A as tournament time approached. Springfield meets Dover at 9:30 p. m. today.

Springfield's lone defeat was in its first game of the season against Dayton Fairmont. Its unbroken list of victories includes three wins over Dayton Stivers, eight-times state champion.

Columbus East has a slight advantage over other tournament contestants in that it has already played three games on the Ohio State gym floor. East won the class A central district title there last week.

All teams were barred from using the floor for practice this week, so there might be no charges of unfairness.

IRISH FAVORED

Lancaster St. Mary's is the favored quintet in class B. Delphos, Celina Catholic, Strasburg and Racine come to the tournament as comparative unknowns.

Crowds of home-town rooters followed the tournament teams to Columbus today. Band music and cheering will be a part of the tournament program. Assistant Athletic Director Henry Taylor, of Ohio State, is manager of the meet.

VERSATILE CHAMPION

Miss Jessie ("Jay") Purves, who is the greatest ping-pong player in the country among the ladies fair, being the woman's national singles ping pong champion. Besides that she swims, golfs, bowls, plays tennis and basketball. Her regular occupation is that of physical education director for girls at the Maine Township (Illinois) High School.

CLASS GAMES

Seniors Make Comeback to Defeat Sophomers Teams in Both Games

Seniors won the high school class games Thursday evening smacking the sophomores in two games.

Both games were hotly contested.

Katherine Foresman, at center for the seniors, scored eight points to lead her team while Laughlin led the seniors boys to victory.

AUTO EXPORTS UP

OTTAWA—Exports of motor vehicles and parts from Canada during January 1933, totaled $367,852, a decrease of 22 per cent, but were 48 per cent above the total for January, 1932, which amounted to $247,969.

TRAINING CAMP ...BRIEFS...

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 17.—Although base stealing is Ben Chapman's chief claim to fame, the fleet outfielder's slugging has won both of the Yankees two victories in three games with the Braves. He clouted two triples and a single in New York's 5 to [illegible] win over Boston yesterday.

With Gomez pitching the first five innings and all regulars but Ruth and Combs in the line-up, the Yanks looked more like world champions.

Today the champions went to [illegible]nden to play their old rivals, the Cardinals.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 17.—Outfielder Len Koenecke ,the '$75,000 lemon' of 1932, no longer was the forgotten man of 1933 in the camp of the New York Giants today. He smacked two homers and a double as the Giants laced the Hollywood stars yesterday, 14 to 3.

MIAMI, Fla., March 17.—Minus Joe Stripp, holdout third baseman who packed up and went home after refusing to take a $2,000 salary cut, the Brooklyn Dodgers resumed intensive practice today. The players had a day off yesterday, some going fishing and others taking in the horse races.

BAN NEW FAD

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—The Marlene Dietrich trousers ad is taboo in Kansas City due to an ordinance enacted in the "good old days" that held "no man or woman shall appear on the streets in dress unbecoming his or her sex."

"I speak four languages, but Mr. Culbertson has me stopped in bridge," said Henry Garat, French actor.

Wallace Berry, Sally Eilers, Lee Tracy and Robert Montgomery indicated they were perfectly content to keep on making movies and let Mr. Culbertson continue to haunt bridge tables.

'What is this thing called bridge?" asked Beery.

"We don't play it!" declared Miss Eilers and Tracy.

And Lilian Harvey, recently arrived from Germany, capped the climax when she naively inquired: "Who is Mr. Culbertson?"

Holdout Ended

Compromising on a salary "something over $10,000 for the season," the doughty Hack Wilson, of the Brooklyn Dodgers, is back in the fold, ending the most expensive hold-out of the season. Here is the Hacker at bat during a training session at Coral Gables, Fla. He is twenty pounds lighter than he was at this time last year. It may have been training—or, maybe, worry.

Ex-Mayor Walker May Soon Be Ex-Husband

Divorce Suit, Charging Desertion, Filed by Wife of New York's Former Mayor, Marks End of Twenty-One-Year Marital Voyage.

PLAYING HUBBY'S OPUS.

JAMES J. WALKER and WIFE — BETTY COMPTON

Charging that he deserted her in 1928 and has persistently refused to return to her, Mrs. James J. Walker, wife of the former Mayor of New York, recently filed suit for divorce in Dade County Circuit Court, at Miami, Fla., thus answering the musical query propounded by Walker, "Will You Love Me in December as You Did in May," many years ago when he had a flair for song-writing. The Walkers were married in 1912, soon after Walker was called to the bar as a promising young lawyer. His wife, the former Janet Allen, of Clinton, Ia., was acting in vaudeville when she met "Jimmy," and she is said to have been the inspiration for his famous song. The Walkers were believed to be an ideally-married couple until 1928, when Jimmy was at the peak of his political career and social popularity. Then it was noted they had drifted apart, Walker no longer lived under the same roof with his wife, nor did she accompany him on any of his frequent trips abroad. However, during the Seabury investigation when her husband was under fire, Mrs. Walker stood loyally by him, even when Betty Compton, Broadway showgirl, achieved anonymous publicity as the "Unnamed Person" in his life. After Walker's resignation as Mayor, he went to Europe on the same ship as Miss Compton and her mother. Since then they have been seen frequently in each other's company at various French resorts. Walker, who is writing a book of reminiscences abroad, is reported as having declared he will not contest his wife's action,

NEW YORK HAS ST. PAT PARADE

NEW YORK, March 17.—Twenty thousand loyal sons of Erin donned bright shamrocks and green sashes, 300 dignitaries polished their silk hats and half a dozen bands rehearsed "The Wearing of the Green" and two-score other Irish ditties today in preparation for this afternoon's Gala event—New York's annual St. Patrick's day parade.

Fluctuation of Commodity Prices Explained by Ohio State Economist

Rotarians heard a fine talk on "Rural Economy" Thursday when Guy W. Miller, extension economist of Ohio State University, spoke before the club. In beginning his talk Mr. Miller had a chart showing the price levels on over eight hundred commodities from 1801 to 1931. He explained the reason for these fluctuations and said that in almost every instance the collapse in prices was caused from lack of purchasing power and not over production.

American business activities always slumped during low price periods," he remarked, "and there must be a rise in agricultural commodities to get out of this depression. If there is a general wave of buying and confidence the wheels of industry will again be started."

He concluded his remarks saying that we do not need high prices to have prosperity but need good prices for all commodities with a rising market and with such a condition we can expect better times. He did not, however, believe that we would reach the levels of 1926 to 1929.

President Don Watt appointed F. C. Clark, Frank A. Lynch and W. E. Wallace as the Rotary Club committee to cooperate with other organizations in aiding the Red Men in making preparations for their June convention.

Mr. Watt also stated that a letter had been received from President Roosevelt acknowledging a telegram sent him commending him for actions in handling the present situation.

UTILITIES LOSE IN HOUSE BALLOT

COLUMBUS, March 17.—A significant victory for the movement for public-owned public utilities was claimed today by Ohio legislators who are hostile to the public utilities lobby.

Led by Senator W. P. Haynes (D) of West Lafayette, the senate arose in indignation yesterday and refused to increase the percentage of votes needed to approve bond issues for construction of public-owned utilities. Going a step farther, it decreased the percentage requirments from 60 to 55.

COLUMBUS, March 17.—Governor George White today attached his signature to three legislative measures, including the Smolka bill increasing medicinal prescriptions of liquor from one-half to one pint.

The other measures signed by the governor were: The Eikenberry bill, relieving owners and operators of motor vehicles from liability for accidental injury to guest occupants, and the Haynes bill reducing the required minimum rate of interest to be bid by banks on public funds.

USING THE CORN PRODUCTS

For a cheap dinner, there is much to be said for the old-fashioned combination of pork and hominy. With plenty of gravy, of course—milk gravy, if possible—pork and hominy make a substantial meal. For good balance, however, suggests the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, something else is needed in that meal. Add kale, or collards, or cabbage, or other greens, or tomatoes.

There you have a very excellent balanced meal; and a very cheap one. Hominy, either as grits, samp, or pearl hominy, is never expensive. In some places you may be able to buy lye hominy, or to make it. And lye hominy is considered by many people the very best of all. Pork is cheap and greens ,of one kind or another, or canned tomatoes, also cost very little

Cheapest of all the corn products, of course, is corn meal, the Southern staff of life. In ash cake, hoe cake ,corn dodger, johnny cake, crackling bread, corn cakes, corn pone, corn muffins, spoon bread—from the plain meal-and-water mixture to a combination of eggs, milk, and meal that makes one of the richest of all the quick breads —corn meal serves all types of homes, rich or poor

Like other grains, however, corn is most important as an energy-yielding food. And, also like other grains, it loses some of its best food values in the ordinary milling process. "Old process" meal, water-ground meal, retains more of its protein, its minerals, and its vitamin B than does fine meal. Yellow corn and yellow corn meal contain more vitamin A than white corn or white corn meal

It is important to remember, when food is scarce, that even whole-ground meal, or whole grain cereals of any kind, should be used with milk. In fact, the bureau tested and proposed, some two year ago, a mixture of corn meal and dried skimmilk—"reinforced" corn meal—which was made available in a few places at that time. Recently, in New York—at the suggestion of the State College of Home Economics — the Grange-Dairymen's League-Farm Bureau cooperative has been distributing a similar mixture through its local branches. Such a product, says the Bureau of Home Economics, might well be distributed by relief agencies and by cooperative organizations in other parts of the country.

Corn meal and milk is a good basis on which to build a lowcost diet, because of the energy-yielding values of the meal, and the body-building and protective values of the milk. But other food materials are needed, too, such as are found in greens. That is the reason for the suggestion of greens in a pork-and-hominy dinner. Tomatoes would be equally good. The point is not to rely exclusively on grain foods, even with milk. Avoid a deficiency of the important minerals and vitamins by using some vegetables or fruits.

With the exception of "roastin' ears" in the summer, corn and corn products of all kinds are usually among the cheapest foods at any time of the year. Canned corn is selling now four 20-ounce cans for a quarter. And eggs are getting cheap enough, perhaps, to bring corn pudding into the bill of fare—a dish that is substantial enough, with its eggs and milk and corn, to use without meat or potatoes if need be. A still more substantial canned-corn dish is corn, tomatoes, and cheese on toast. Nor should succotash with canned corn and beans be overlooked, nor, for lunch or supper, say, corn batter cakes or corn fritters.

Hominy and Sausage

6 cups cooked hominy

1 cup milk

1 teaspoon salt

1 pound sausage meat

Heat the hominy with the milk and salt in a double boiler. Fry the sausage until crisp and brown. Remove the sausage meat and mix with the hominy. When well mixed spread the mixture in the frying pan used for the sausage. Cook over low heat until a crisp brown crust has formed and serve on a hot platter.

Creamed Panned Kale

Strip the kale from the midribs and discard the tough stringy portions. Wash the kale thoroughly in several waters, [illegible] and cut into small [illegible]. To [illegible] [illegible] tablespoons [illegible] the [illegible] a skillet and [illegible] cover to [illegible] the steam and cook slowly for 15 to 20 minutes. Sift a teaspoon of flour over the kale, mix well, pour in one-half cup of cream or milk and stir until thickened. Season with salt and pepper and serve at once.

Spoon Bread

1 cup corn meal.

[illegible] cups cold water

2 teaspoons salt

1 cup milk.

2 or 3 eggs

2 tablespoons melted fat

Mix the meal, water, and salt and boil for 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Add the milk, well-beaten eggs, and melted fat, and mix well. Pour in a well-greased hot pan or baking dish and bake for 30 to 40 minutes in a hot oven (400 F.) Serve from the baking pan.

Baked Indian Pudding

1 quart milk

1-3 cup yellow corn meal.

1 teaspoon salt.

1-2 cup molasses

1-2 to 1 teaspoon ginger.

Cook the milk ,corn meal, and salt in a double boiler for 20 minutes. Add the molasses and ginger, pour into a greased baking dish, and bake in a very moderate oven (about 300 F.) for 2 hours. Serve hot.

Tomato, Corn, and Cheese on Toast

3 tablespoons flour.

3 tablespoons melted butter or other fat.

2 cups canned tomatoes

1 onion, sliced.

2 cups canned corn

2 teaspoons salt.

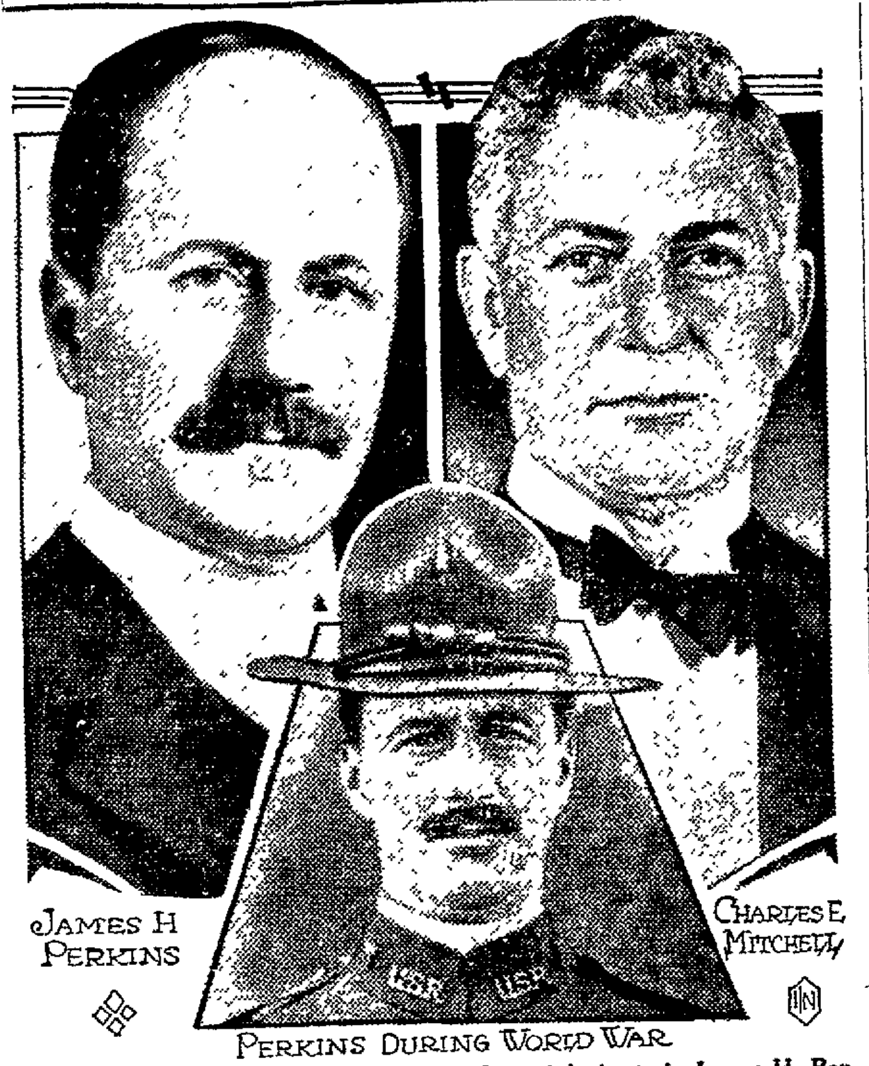
1-4 pound sharp cheese, shaved thin.

Brown the flour in a heavy skillet, remove the flour from the skillet and blend with 2 tablespoons of the fat. Brown the onion in the remaining fat, add the other ingredients except the cheese, and cook for about 10 minutes. Stir in the cheese and when melted serve on thin crisp toast.

New National City Bank Head Started Career in Chocolate

* * * * * * *

Despite Sweet Beginning, James H. Perkins Carved Out Noteworthy Career as Banker—Decorated for Distinguished Services in World War.



Probably unique among contemporary financial giants is James H. Perkins, who recently succeeded Charles E. Mitchell as chairman of the National City Bank of New York. For unlike most money moguls Perkins has not been a banker all his life—in fact, his first battle in the great fight for a career was waged in the chocolate business. Born in Milton, Mass., in 1876, Perkins was graduated from Harvard in 1898. For seven years thereafter he was in the employ of a firm of chocolate manufacturers, where he gave early indications of reaching the top of the tree in that particular business. But he wasn't satisfied. And in 1905 Perkins entered the banking business in Boston. After three years in the Hub City as vice-president of the American Trust Company, he accepted a vice-presidency of the National Commercial Bank of Albany. He was elected president of that institution in 1912. Two years later he came to the National City Bank, where he remained until the United States entered the World War. Perkins served overseas as Red Cross commissioner and officer in the American Army. After the Armistice he was with the Army of Occupation in Germany. He was decorated by three governments for distinguished service in Europe. In 1921, Perkins was elected president of the Farmers Loan and Trust Company, which was later taken over by the National City and renamed City Bank Farmers Trust. Perkins continued as its head until he was called to fill the post vacated by Mitchell's resignation.

Sensible Precautions Against Burns, Scalds

A Little Care and Forethought Would Prevent Many Serious Accidents—Here's How to Give First Aid Treatment

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

BURNS, SCALDS and explosions continue to take the lives of many men, women and children. Most of these accidents could have been prevented.

It is a pathetic sight to see a fire victim. Those who survive are often scarred and even disabled for life.

Dr Copeland

No one should overlook the serious danger of carelessness in the handling of fire and hot liquids, such as water, coffee, soup, milk and gravy. Scalding by hot liquids is serious and like fire injuries may prove fatal. Children and elderly individuals, particularly, should be protected from these dangers, because the young and [illegible] quickly succumb to such a [illegible].

Children Playing With Matches

Children should never be [illegible] to play with matches. The [illegible] stove, with its boiling kettles [illegible] other hot utensils, is a constant source of danger to children playing in the kitchen. Frolicking and [illegible] romping and active play should be permitted only in a room free from [illegible] danger

Too often adults are burned or scalded by reason of the dangerous practice of [illegible] clothes with gasoline. [illegible] no one should forget to avoid fire and matches when cleaning with gasoline.

Another common cause for fire accidents is one I wish to warn you against. This is the starting of a fire with kerosene oil. It is far safer to have dry kindling wood handy than to use the kerosene can which may result in injury to you or your family.

I beg of you to bear in mind these dangers. I think it advisable, too for everyone to be familiar with the emergency treatment of a burn.

How to Treat Burns

A simple burn is best treated by applying moistened starch, flour or baking powder. This protects the damaged skin and keeps the air away from the inflamed surface. When the burn is more severe and the skin red, apply olive oil, castor oil, vaseline, or some soothing ointment.

Do not use kitchen lard or grease, as infection is likely to take place from such contaminated material. If the victim has been severely burned and suffers from intense pain, place him in a warm tub of water to which a pound of baking soda [illegible]. While waiting for the doctor [illegible] keep him in the [illegible]. Hot [illegible] milk should be given the sufferer. This [illegible] the body heat and prevents collapse and shock.

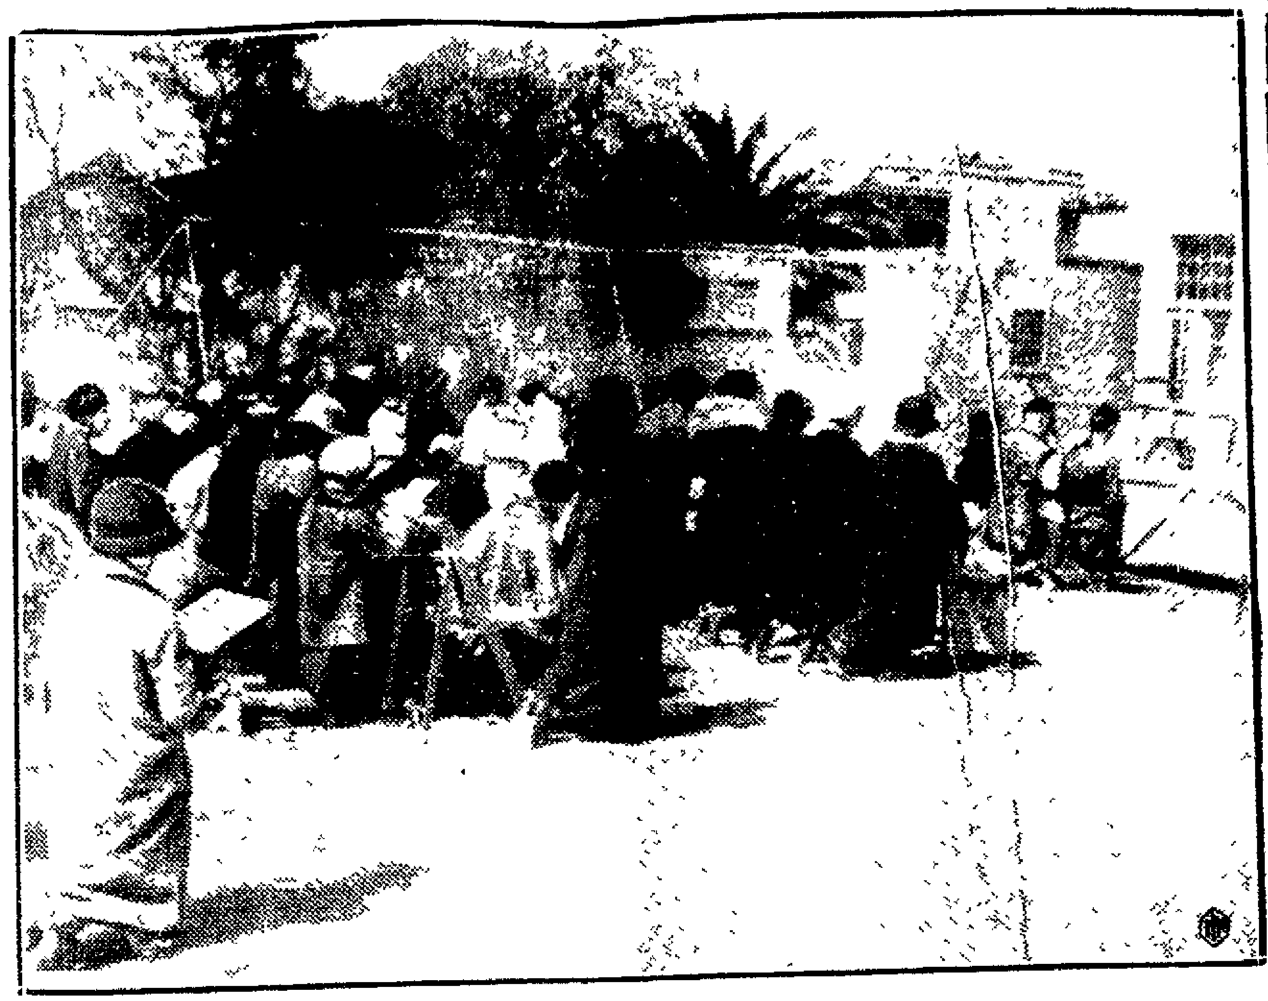
Open-Air Service for Earthquake Survivors



Owing to the unsafe condition of many of the churches which were badly shaken by the disastrous earth tremors, hundreds of residents of Long Beach, Cal., attended open-air church services to offer thanks for their preservation. This touching scene was enacted at Bixbie's Bowl, Long Beach, where hundreds of refugees, many of whom were rendered homeless knelt at prayer in thanksgiving for their deliverance from the peril that brought death to many of their fellow citizens.

Plan Excellent Program At Sportsmen's Meeting

Headed by Former Senator J. F. Atwood, who will act as toastmaster during the evening, a splendid program has been arranged for the Pickaway-co Farmer's and Sportsmen's big fish fry and banquet to be held at the Elk's club next Thursday at 6:30 p. m.

Several widely known speakers will be on the program with featured musical organizations to provide important parts. The ladies quartet of the Monday Club and the Clarksburg Good Will male quartet have been obtained for the evening. The ability of the Monday Club organization is well known and the Clarksburg organization is becoming famous through its musical ability.

Three hundred pounds of Florida's best red snapper has been ordered. The entire menu will consist of red snapper, vegetables salad, small green onions, baby radishes, baked whole potatoes, rye and white bread, butter, celery and coffee. Wherever it is possible food is being obtained from local growers.

Harry Bartholomew will have charge of the dining room.

A large number of women are expected to attend the meeting with a separate room being prepared for them and their husbands. The women will enjoy the program as much as the men.

Skunks in Spotlight

MAGNOLIA, Mass — Skunks have been unduly friendly in Massachusetts this year, due to dry vegetation which forces the skunk family to look to the gardens and garbage pails. House of Morgan Challenged by Rockefeller Bank Crusader

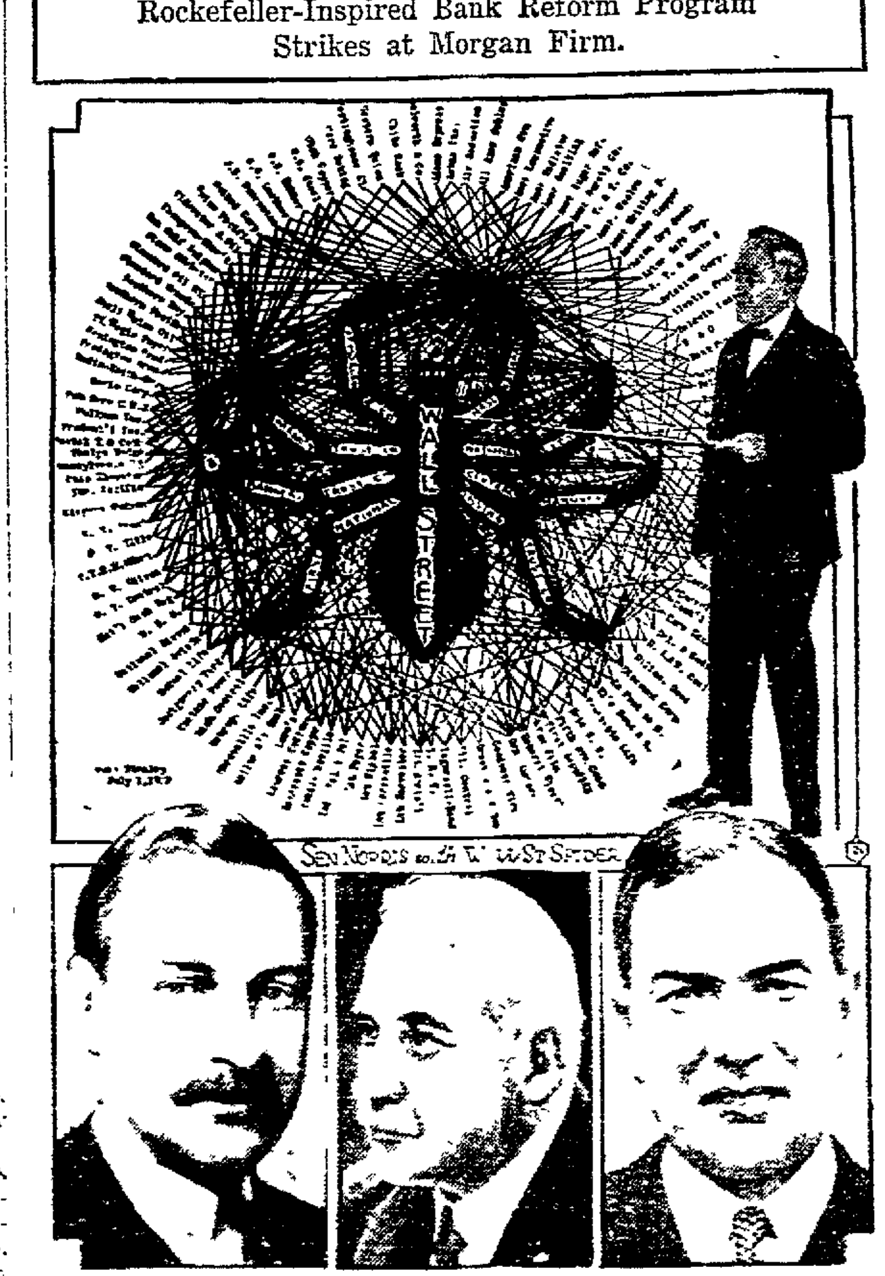
* * * * * * *

Battle for Supremacy in Financial World Looms as Rockefeller-Inspired Bank Reform Program Strikes at Morgan Firm.



Calling for the absolute obliteration of every semblance of affiliation between commercial banks and private banking firms; for the separation of deposit banking and investment banking and the prohibiting of private bankers from becoming directors in commercial institutions, Winthrop W. Aldrich, head of the Chase National Bank, recently offered a drastic banking reform program which is believed to have been the first shot in a war, the goal of which is supremacy in the financial world. Almost every point which Aldrich advocates in his program is aimed at the firm of J. P. Morgan and Company, which has dominated United States, if not world, finance since the panic of 1907. As Aldrich, a brother-in-law of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., spoke in his capacity as head of the Chase National, brightest jewel in the sceptre of the Rockefeller industrial-financial dynasty, it is believed that his program is in the nature of a challenge to the Morgan firm. It is significant that during the present crisis Morgan partners have been missing from the inner circles of the new Administration. Heretofore, the Morgans were always first to be consulted in times of national stress. It is interesting also to recall how a short time ago, Senator George Norris of Nebraska indulged in a fiery tirade against Wall Street, and the Morgans in particular, during which he exhibited a chart in the form of a gigantic spider showing how, by a system of interlocking directorates, Wall Street controls practically every corporation of any size in the entire country.

CAN'T BE GOOD

NEW YORK— Robert McCormack, 60, alias "English Bob," one of the oldest confidence men in the business, is in the toils of the law for the twentieth time. He is being held without bail, on a charge of stealing a $2,500 brooch from an apartment where he passed himself off as a prospective lease.

AID POOR STUDENTS

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah — Needy coeds at the University of Utah, will be assured comfortable clothing under a plan being worked out by sororities. The clothing is donated by students, and is then sold to young women who need it for whatever they are able to pay. Receipts are placed in a women students' welfare fund.

BOOTH CAPTOR DEAD

WESTMINSTER, Calif.— W. A. McDonald, 98, last living member of the squad of troopers who captured John Wilkes Booth, assassin of Abraham Lincoln, died here on Lincoln's birthday, as was his wish. McDonald with the soldiers surrounded and burned the barn in which Booth had taken refuge.

IN AGAIN, OUT AGAIN

BOSTON— Five-year-old Janet Champa, of East Boston, swallowed a marble and it lodged in her throat. While she was enroute to the hospital in an ambulance, her mother, fearing the girl would choke before reaching the hospital, shook the child. She finally succeeded in dislodging the marble, and the ambulance turned around and took them home.

Fishes

SWIMMING has become, as much as anything, our national sport. We go swimming in the summer more than ever before. Those who have access to sheltered pools swim the year round. There will soon be one in the White House.

President-elect Roosevelt's foundness for swimming will add to the popularity of the sport. His example of swimming daily in midwinter, at his winter home in Georgia, is contagious. In the future, homes that can afford it may have swimming pools in the basement instead of the present type of recreation rooms.

It is a fine thing, far more wholesome than most of our diversions. And there is a sort of atavism in the lure of the water. If the evolutionists are right, it goes far back. Savages swim naturally. Our remote ancestors may have been almost as much at home in the water as on land. The latest genealogical bulletin traces our ancestry back 400,000 years to a fish. Our blood has the saline composition of sea water, from which all life is supposed to have come.

Price of Nails

IN the largest nail-making center of the United States, wire nails have been selling recently for less than nail wire. Spikes or 20-penny nails, in carload lots, went at $2.05 a hundred-weight, while No. 6 wire in coils by the carload sold for $2.10 a hundred-weight. The nails were in kegs, too, which were worth something. It is said to be the first time in history that such a situation has occurred.

Many things are occuring now for the first time in history. It is a crazy era. So far, 1933 has been a crazy year. When have so many unpredictable things ocurred in one month, in American business and government, as the January just ended? Heaven send us order and restore our wits before the year is over!

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE

When Major Sands and Monsieur de Bernis came to break their fast in the hut next morning, Miss Priscilla met de Bernis with a complaint concerning Pierre.

This was the third morning in succession that the half-caste had been absent when breakfast was to be prepared, with the result that she had been alone in preparing it.

"He is nowhere to be seen. Each day he does not appear again until close upon noon. What can he be doing? Where does he go?"

"He is seeking yams, perhaps," de Bernis replied casually.

"If so, he never seems to find any. Both yesterday and the day before I saw him return, and he came empty-handed from the woods."

"Perhaps the yams are becoming scarce, and he is driven farther afield in his search for them."

His apparent indifference to his servant's evasion of duty seemed curious to her, as he might have read in the glance with which she searched his face.

"Could he not leave those quests until after we have broken our fast?"

"Perhaps he likes to find the yams still moist with morning dew."

At this absurdity her stare became more marked. "I wonder why you should jest about it."

"In our situation there are so few things that lend themselves for jesting that I may surely be forgiven if I neglect none of these few. But I will speak to Pierre. I will see what can be arranged."

This, she thought, was an oddly offhand way to treat the matter, of slight importance though it might be. And to say no more in conclusion than to promise to see what could be arranged, when a simple word from him could remove the cause of her complaint, seemed almost discourteously casual. She pressed the matter no further; but a sense of annoyance remained with her.

Later in the course of the morning, the Major and the Frenchman went off to their daily secret sword-play beyond the bluff.

Captain Leach was strolling alone at the time on the damp firm sands at the very edge of the receding tide, a vivid figure in his scarlet suit. Impatient to be afloat again, and so safe from surprise, he came from urging the men in the completion of the work; for now that the tarring of the hull was finished, only the greasing remained to be done, and in three days, or four at the most, the Black Swan should be ready for launching again

From where he paced he saw the two men move away from their sequestered little camp and disappear into the woods. He had already observed these morning absences of theirs, and he halted, wondering vaguely whither they went, when his attention was attracted by the green-clad figure of Priscilla Harradine coming forth from her hut. From the distance he watched that trim, graceful shape with eyes of kindling admiration. He watched her turn to the right, and set out briskly, like one who was guided by a definite purpose She proceeded for some little way along the summit of the beach, then she, too, vanished into the wood.

From wondering whither she might be going so unfalteringly and definitely, he reached almost at once the desire to ascertain. Resentment of the barrier raised against his attentions to the lady had never ceased to smoulder in him; and it was accompanied by a growing impatience for the time when, the business of the Spanish plate fleet being concluded, this barrier would definitely be removed. It had not often happened to Tom Leach to be under the necessity of restraining his desire, and he remained unschooled as a savage in the art of it. Also, as is the way of unruly, undisciplined men, he must ever be preferring that which lay under his hand at the moment to the greater things that might be achieved by planning and waiting. It is an indication of his rudimentary intelligence.

Wriggling like a snake, he thrust himself forward over the bluff, above which, had she looked up, she would have beheld no more than his head.

It is doubtful, therefore, whether in obeying now the unreasoned instinct to follow her, he was prompted only by curiosity on the score of her movements.

In long, swift strides he crossed the beach diagonally, straight to the palm tree with the arnotto roses clustering about its stem by which he had marked the spot at which she had vanished into the wood. Once, himself under the shelter of the trees, he had little difficulty in picking up her trail. It was plainly marked in the undergrowth, thinner on the edges of this jungle than in the depths of it.

Cautiously, unhurried, but purposefully now as a hound upon a spoor he followed. The trail led upwards over rising ground. At the summit of this, the hard dry earth between the sparser palms was almost bare, and the trail lost its distinctness; he quested there for some moments, to be led eventually towards the open by signs which might be those of someone's recent passage that way. But having reached the edge of the bluff, he was entirely at fault. She was nowhere to be seen. Below him, like a gigantic emerald set in a vast cup of rock, he beheld a pool so clear that through its smooth, unruffled surface he could see the fish moving in the depths of it. Saving the unsuspected little platform under the black canopy of rock immediately beneath him, he could survey not merely the beach of this tiny cove, but long stretches of sand beyond the barriers of rock on either side of it, and nowhere in sight was Miss Priscilla.

He concluded that she must have continued through the wood, and went back to endeavour to pick up the trail again. Ahead, where the ground began gently to slope once more and the undergrowth increased again, he saw signs that it had been trampled, and cursing the time he had wasted, he was moving forward, when suddenly a splash below, too loud to have been made by any leaping fish, arrested him.

He turned. He saw wavelets moving outwards in widening circles, from some point which the rock screened from his gaze, rippling the mirror-like surface of the pool. A moment later, whilst he was staring frowning inquiry, he saw that which made him catch his breath, and instinctively drop upon hands and knees amongst the trees so as to avoid, himself, being seen A nymph of an incredible whiteness was swimming out across the tiny lagoon. As beheld through the water, her limbs seemed of marble.

Leach, so pale through his tan that his countenance seemed almost green, feasted hot eyes upon that vision of incredible loveliness

As she turned to swim back, he dropped still lower, into a supine position. In this, wriggling upon his belly like a snake, he thrust himself forward to the very edge of the bluff, above which, had she looked up, she would have beheld no more than his head from the eyes upwards Thus he remained until she had passed again under the screening canopy

In that moment de Bernis, the Spanish plate fleet, his officers, his lawless followers and the account they might demand of him if the enterprise of the plate fleet were now wrecked, had ceased to be of any deterring account. All that he considered was whether he should leap down from that bluff or fall back and wait here among the friendly shelter of the trees. In the end he decided for the trees, and went recklessly crashing through the undergrowth to conceal himself amongst them.

Livid, panting, his heart beating in his throat, he crouched there waiting, a beast in ambush for its prey.

MOVIES

AT THE GRAND

One og the mos spectacular scenes in "The Golden West," George O'Brien's latest Fox picture, coming to the Grand theater, is the buffalo hunt which develops into mad stampede.

A terror-stricken girl is squeezed between the two leaders of the milling animals with the rest of the heard almost upon her, when O'Brien, riding like the wind, swings into the mass and sweeps her up to his saddle. A second's hesitation would have meant death under the many pounding hoofs of the frightened buffaloes.

In the supporting cast are Janet Chandler, recently elevated to featured roles; Marion Burns, leading woman from Broadway; Emmett Corrigan, Edmund Breese, Bert Hanlon, Arthur Pierson and Onslow Stevens The production was directed by David Howard, from the story by Zane Grey.

TWO DARK KNIGHTS OF VAUDEVILLE AND RADIO FAME AT THE GRAND

There's not a brighter, happier Musical comedy act on the air than Two Dark Knights and best of all they'll bring all that musical cheer to the Grand Theater in Circleville when they visit their radio friends Friday night, March 17th in person.

Off the air the Two Dark Knights are Clyde Hoskins and Johnnie Imboden, extroopers with a long list of accomplishments on the vaudeville and ministrel stage to their credit. Hoskins is a former member of the famous Six Brown Brothers Saxophone Sextette in which he played the same over-grown bass sax which he now uses in his radio act. Imboden is a minstrel man and vaudeville artist and formerly with the Pat Casey Revue a Keith Headliner.

AT THE CLIFTONA

Alice White comes back. After two years away from the screen, the pretty script girl who made such a sensational rise to stardom as the typical flaming youth girl, will again appear in a First National picture at the Cliftona theater tonight and Saturday, as one of an all star cast in "Employees' Entrance," which features no less than five outstanding screen stars

Warren William has the leading role with Loretta Young playing opposite him while Miss White appears as a blonde department store model who vamps her way into the heart of her Boss. It has been two years since Alice White has appeared on the screen. The last ten months of that period she spent on a dazzling series of personal stage appearances all over the United States.

Mader, Mrs. Harry Heffner, Mrs. Walter Kindler, Mrs. Walter Potts, Miss Mary Roth, Mrs. J. G. Wilder and Mrs. Harp VanRiper, program, Mrs Ward Robinson, chairman, Mrs H. O. Pile and Mrs. J. O. Eagleson

Miss Seyfert read the notes of appreciation from members who received flowers from the club during a recent illness and announced the chairman of the program, Mrs. Tom Renick, who with her assistants, Mrs. B. T. Hedges and Mrs. Wilson Cellar, deserves much credit for an enjoyable entertainment.

Miss Mary May Haswell, clad as an Irishman in tall silk hat, satin blouse and trousers, announced the first number—a reading by Mrs Tom Renick, entitled, "A Date with St Patrick." Mrs Renick was charming in her Irish costume and gave a splendid interpretation of the Irish dialect.

Mrs Renick next announced a group of "Irish Airs" which were sung by Miss Mary May Haswell The group included "Mother Machree" and "My Wild Irish Rose", and were played on the piano by Miss Abbe Mills Clarke.

The third number was a playlet entitled "The Three Wishes' with Mrs B. T. Hedges and Mrs. J O Eagleson cast in the stellar roles

"A Bit of Blarney" was introduced, when Mrs George McDowell and Mrs Blanch Motschman made their debut in a noisy manner, as Molly and Pat Flanigan. Molly helped Miss Haswell lead the singing and Pat accompanied them with his guitar as the other Irish actors joined in the singing

Mrs. Renick and Miss Haswell accompanied by Miss Clark did an Irish "Jiggety Jig" or folk dance, Pat and Molly joined in the capers and danced their way out of the room.

A social session ensued and the guests were invited to an attractively appointed table, decorated in keeping with the St. Patrick spirit, the green color scheme prevailing in the decorations and the delicious collation which was served. Mrs Hulse Hays presided at the tea urn

Mrs. Leland Pontius, chairman of the refreshment committee, was assisted by Mrs. E F Anderson, Mrs. George Foresman, Miss Mary May Haswell, Mrs Hulse Hays, Mrs. W. G. Jacob, Mrs. Richard Jones, Mrs. Stanley Lewis, Miss Minnida Lyle, Miss Elizabeth Stevenson, Mrs. Bruce Stevenson, Mrs. Noah Spangler and Mrs. Boyd Trout.

Almost Forgotten Needle Craft Revived By Depression Economy

* * * * * *

Women Kept Home by Retrenchment Programs Turn to Crochet, Knitting and Patchwork Quilting to Keep Fingers Nimble.

In common with other ill winds, the well-known depression, has at least one good thing that may be cited in its favor. It brought "Home Sweet Home" back to popularity and caused a renaissance in the all-but-forgotten art of needlework. Back in the boom days, our smart womenfolk were drifting towards a point where they believed that a needle was something necessary for playing a phonograph, but since most households have found it essential to run on budgets, milady has had to curtail many of her amusements and outings. The result is that the needle has come into its own during the past few lean years. There are few American homes that one can enter today where at least one member of the family is not engaged in some type of needlework. Old dresses have been dug out of the attic and transformed into patchwork quilts like grandma used to make, sweaters, socks and comforters have been turned out by the gross and many women are not only using the needle for pastime, but are actually turning out some wonderful creations in crochet. There is nothing that a woman cannot make with a crochet needle if she takes the time and trouble. Above are a few examples of what has been done, and what can be done again. Center is a smart jumper, crocheted in red, white and blue cotton. The front is white, the bow red and the body of the jumper navy blue. At right is a really beautiful dress, crocheted in an elaborate flower design. This dress is charming either on polo grounds or at a garden party. At left is a smart little fez beret. which is as simple to make as it is smart.

MRS. RIEGEL ENTERTAINS

Mrs Alice Riegel entertained the members of her afternoon sewing club at her home in Kingston, Thursday The pleasant hours spent in sewing were concluded when the hostess served a delicious lunch.

Miss Mary Heffner, E. Mound-st, invited the club to her home in two weeks

BIBLE CLASS HAS MONTHLY SESSION

An interesting meeting of the Shining Light Bible Class of the United Brethren church was held Thursday evening in the Community house The president, Mrs C. O Kerns, opened the session with music followed by a devotional service in charge of the vice president, Mrs John Neuding.

The business for the evening was taken up. It was decided to have the chicken supper, which was scheduled for March 16, on Thursday, March 30 Committees were appointed to solicit and other details were discussed. It was also decided that the class should have its election of officers in May, the same time as the other departments of the church hold elections

Rev T. C. Harper gave a splendid talk on "Cooperation", which contained many valuable hints for the betterment and upbuilding of the class. At its conclusion he was given a rising vote of thanks and invited to attend the class meetings often.

The program for the evening was presented under the leadership of Miss Cora Hampshire and consisted of the following numbers reading, "Signs of the Times", Miss Viola Woolever; recitation. "The Two Builders", Mrs. Ralph Long, reading, "A Gift from Heaven", Mrs John Neuding; recitation, 'How the Weed was First Known", Mrs C O Kerns A story was read by Miss Daisy Woolever and the program was concluded by a vocal duet. "Don't Forget Jesus" by Mrs Iley Greeno and Mrs William Hegele The leader read a clever verse. "Living", which could well be a motto for anyone

During the social hour dainty refreshments were served by the March committee under the chairmanship of Mrs Clyde White

Bar Association Adopts Resolution in Memory of Former Judge Curtain

Following is a copy of a resolution adopted by the Pickaway-co bar association memorializing the death of Former Judge Clarence Curtain

IN MEMORY OF JUDGE CLARENCE CURTAIN

Judge Clarence Curtain, for fifty nine years a member of the Bar of Pickaway-co Ohio, departed this life March 4th, 1933, in Circleville, Ohio at the age of 80 years; In 1882 he was married to Mary Carper, who with one son and three grand children survive him:

He was born near London, Madison-co, Ohio in the year 1853, and commenced his education in the country schools of that county. Later he attended school in London and from there went to the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor, where he graduated in the law department in 1874. Almost immediately thereafter he settled in Circleville and entered upon the practice of his profession, having been admitted to practice in this state by the District Court.

Mr. Curtain formed a partnership with the Hon. A. T. Walling, who at that time was a member of Congress, and this firm continued until 1879, and from that time until he was elected Judge, Mr Curtain practiced alone.

In 1884 he was elected Prosecuting Attorney of Pickaway County and served in that capacity for six years During the time he was Prosecuting Attorney the new court house and the new jail was built, which together with Treasury dafalcations and Darbyville riots brought on new and complicated duties and questions, all, which he handled with conceded legal ability and skill and he became one of the leading attorneys at the bar.

Mr. Curtain was elected Common Pleas Judge of Pickaway-co in 1910, taking office in 1911, and was twice re-elected, serving as Judge for eighteen years until 1929, when he retired.

Judge Curtain, while in the practice of law and while serving as Judge, was an untiring worker, occupying almost his entire time, between his home, the court and his office He never ceased working upon a case either as a lawyer or Judge until he had exhausted the entire field of precedent and legal thought. In preparing his decisions on cases presented to him as Judge, he not only gave careful examination and consideration to the briefs presented by counsel, but frequently examined into the law for further legal precedent upon which to make his decision He invariably wrote his opinion and gave reason and precedents for the same, in a clear and exhaustive manner, that the losing party would see the justice of the decision, and frequently abide by the decision without appealing or prosecuting error to the higher court. If cases were taken to the higher court counsel, in whose favor the case had been decided by Judge Curtain, would use the opinion of the Judge to sustain his case in the higher court His decisions were frequently referred to and followed by other courts and he was rarely reversed by the higher courts.

About the time Judge Curtain retired from the bench his health began failing, and while he again entered upon the practice of the law, his failing health kept him away from the office most of the time However there are but few who survive the trying ordeal of the law and as a judge for fifty nine years as did Judge Curtain.

At the time of his death he was the Nestor of the Bar, he was a member of Columbia Lodge and Pickaway Encampment of the I O O F for more than fifty years and was also a member of the C A. C

Members of the Bar attended his funeral in a body, and the entire membership mourn his loss.

Therefore Be It Resolved by the Pickaway County Bar Association, that in the death of Judge Curtain the association is deprived of a useful and valued member, and even though he lived beyond the allotted time for man his presence will be missed from among them; and that with profound sense of a personal loss, its members offer to his widow and family their condolence; and

Be It Further Resolved that a copy of these resolutions be respectfully presented to them; and a copy be furnished to the newspaper for publication; and that a copy be furnished to the Clerk of Courts to be spread upon the records.

Under threat of arrest for extortion, Fairbanks and his business manager, N C Levee, forced Dietz to accompany them to the district attorney's office where he was "browbeaten" and later imprisoned for two hours in a hotel room, Dietz charged in his second suit

District Attorney Buron Fitts admitted Dietz had been questioned in his office by Chief Investigator Blayney Matthews, "relative to an asserted $6,000 extortion plot against young Fairbanks."

Dietz, it was claimed, had attempted to "sell" young Fairbanks a diamond necklace alleged to be worth $300 to $6000.

"I am not going to dodge the issue this time because I feel that it is an out and out attempt at extortion," Young Fairbanks said,

"I went through it all once before. Fred Beetson (the representative of Will H. Hays) took it up with Buron Fitts and Fitts wanted to prosecute them then but the woman pleaded and cried and she had a daughter going to school and begged me not to send her to jail for the daughter's sake.

"I hate to appear to be a martyr, but that is exactly what I am going to be. I am going to see the thing through.

"The most unfortunate part of it all is that Joan and my mother back east, innocently in the background, may suffer.

"But Joan understands the whole thing and has known about it all along. At first we laughed, but now we are mad—not between ourselves—but at the whole situation.

"That check given by Mike Levee and now in Fitts' possession was just a part of the scheme to prove the fellow was an extortionist."

"There is nothing for me to say except that I have known all about this from the start." Miss Crawford was quoted as saying "We have discussed these flagrant charges together. It is an outrageous injustice and there is no truth whatever in them."

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE

In the pursuance of the order of the Probate Court of Pickaway County, Ohio, to us directed as Administrators with the Will and Codicil thereto annexed, of the estate of Sarah F. Hampp, deceased, we, as such administrators, will offer for sale at public auction at the front door of the Court House in Circleville, Ohio, on Monday, April 10th, 1933, at two o'clock p. m., the following described real estate, situated in the City of Circleville, in Pickaway County, Ohio, and described as follows:

FIRST TRACT: — Being lot No. 892, according to the revised numbering of the lots of said City of Circleville, Ohio. Appraised at $400.00. This lot is situated west of and adjacent to Alley No. 15 in A. Huston's Second Addition to said City and is on the south side of E. Ohio Street, between Washington and Clinton Streets, and has thereon a large two story frame building used as a tenement; said building has no house number on it, but it should be numbered 355 East Ohio Street, in said City.

SECOND TRACT:—Being forty seven (47) feet off of the north side of Lot No. 902, according to the revised numbering of the lots of the said City of Circleville Ohio. Appraised at $3,000.00 with the two dwellings and buildings thereon.

This part lot is on the south east corner of Washington and Ohio Streets; it fronts 47 feet on Washington Street, and runs back eastward with the south line of Ohio Street, 198 feet to Alley No. 13 in said A. Huston's Second Addition to said City.

This part lot will be offered in two parcels; 148 feet off of the west end of said part lot, with the two story frame dwelling thereon fronting on South Washington Street, and all out buildings thereon, has been appraised at $2,250.00 and will be separately offered and struck off to highest bidder; 50 feet off of the east end of said part lot, with the small frame dwelling thereon fronting on East Ohio Street, and out buildings thereon, has been appraised at $750.00 and will be separately offered and struck off to the highest bidder; then the whole 47 feet by 198 feet of part lot No. 902, with the two dwellings and all buildings thereon, will then be offered and struck off to the highest bidder, and shall be sold in whatever manner said property brings the most money.

Letter Sent Parents by Maynard Sensenbrenner Describes Quake

The following letter written to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sensenbrenner, by Maynard Sensenbrenner of Los Angeles, Calif., vividly tells details of the earthquake which occurred in that vicinity over the past week-end.

March 13, 1933.

How happy I am that we were all spared from the earthquake and I hope we will never witness another one.

It came at 5:55 p. m. last Friday evening. We close at 6 p. m. and of course the store was full of last minute shoppers getting their groceries. I was up in the front of the store when all at once the lights went out, the store started to rock, bottle goods started hitting the floor and everyone started for the doors. Then a little girl started screaming by my side; She almost scared me to death. I pushed her ahead and her Dad finally got her outside. I hardly realized what it was all about when it was over. I never will be any whiter when I am dead than I was then. It seemed to me that all the blood drained from my face, and I was white for some time. Everyone inside looked like a bunch of ghosts. I made a report on what was broken, which was not much. quite a bit of jams and jellies, and then started for home.

We did not realize the seriousness of it until the reports started coming in on the radio, and they were terrible. Then along came another quake and I grabbed Eddie and Mildred and I ran out on the porch.

Everybody was out side and all excited. We were having quakes about every ten minutes, and believe me its a desolate feeling not knowing what was coming next. I called up Aunt Arie and they were all OK but the city of Bell was hit hard. Remember the show across from Aunt Arie's? Part of the roof caved in and all the brick structure at the top fell off. Well we had sometime running in and out everytime a quake would come. We left the baby sleeping in the car in front of the house, afraid to take it in. Mildred and I came home around midnight and stayed up most of the night. It quaked off and on all night. Just imagine it has quaked off and on all the time up to this evening and this is Monday night. Everyone is about dead for sleep and nervous.

Los Anegeles had enough but what we went through faded into nothing when we heard about Long Beach, Compton, Huntington Park. No one was allowed in Long Beach on Sunday or anywhere else without a pass but I got in on my Scoutmaster's badge. Mildred, Eddie and I drove into Long Beach about 9:30 a. m. Sunday and what a sight. Words cannot describe it so I am sending you pictures I took from the papers, this will just give you an idea. I also took some snap shots and if any good will send them to you.

Long Beach is under martial law, people all camping out. Lots of them left the city when reports of Tidal wave coming. No water, gas or lights, and you can hardly find a place that was not damaged some. We called on one friend and found their house moved ten inches, broke nearly all the dishes, cement cracked and they got off lucky. Buildings by the dozen, with fronts off, some clear down, others just stripped naked of their brick work. Will send you a picture of the place where we bought groceries, right across from the last place we lived in Long Beach. I just cannot begin to describe the terribleness of it.

We got into Compton and that city is flat, nearly all the business district wiped out. We called on some of our friends there and they are sleeping in a tent with their three babies. They are without gas, water, lights, food and everything has to be brought to them.

We drove through Sinwood, South Gate into Bell. They are all shut off to traffic and stopped at Aunt Aries and had dinner with them. She took care of the baby while Mid and I took the sights in at Bell. They were sure lucky, only broke a couple vases for them. Huntington Park was hit very hard so we just hit the out skirts of it and we had seen enough. While out at Aunt Aries we had a pretty hard quake, and we all made a dash for the door but it was soon over. Aunt Arie is so nervous that she hardly knows what to do.

You can get more out of the pictures than you can get out of this letter so will close hoping you are all well and please write and pray for us that God will take care of all of us so we can meet again real soon.

We sure thank God for taking care of us. Taking us out of Long Beach, also the Shell Oil [illegible] refinery where I worked, [illegible] at Domingines Junction. [illegible] Dubes plant burst up and the [illegible] ceiving house, made out of [illegible] where I worked for over two years caved in. Nothing left of it. The quake caused it. Also for keeping us all alive during the quake and not one of our family was hurt. Did quite a bit of damage our home, but its nothing compared with what others went through.

Tom Moore is OK. Did not hit Wilmington very hard.
